In more than 14,000 sqm of exhibition space and over three days, visitors took the opportunity to learn about new trends, connect with colleagues and customers, and close new business deals.

In the Emitex, Simatex and Confemaq 2024 aisles, visitors learned about the new sustainable trends that the industry has to offer, new technologies, highlighting the DENIM STATION space, a sector designed to demonstrate the importance of denim throughout its production cycle.

Within the framework of the Lecture Series, the president of Fundación Pro Tejer, Luciano Galfione, gave a lecture on the Perspective of the Argentine Textile and Garment Industry in the Current Context. During the lecture, the president stressed the need to strengthen industrial policy as a necessary condition to be a developed country and mentioned: "Our main function is to help the companies of the sector and the whole arc that surrounds this value chain, generating public policy proposals that serve to enhance what we are, betting on the development of our country."

"We are proud that this great meeting of the textile and garment industry has been as well attended as it was, where suppliers of the entire value chain of the sector were able to show the great potential, quality and technology of the national industry at international level. We met again after two years, in a new scenario such as La Rural. These spaces serve to demonstrate the scope of the textile industry, which not only generates added value to the country but also generates jobs", said Andrea Lippi, Emitex, Simatex and Confemaq's Project Manager.
