Final Report: Intersec Buenos Aires 2026 Concludes with 16,000 Visitors and a Comprehensive Program of Activities

Buenos Aires, September 2026 – More than 120 exhibitors and 16,000 professionals took part in the event, which brought together the leading players of the security industry at La Rural Trade Center in Buenos Aires over three days. The exhibition provided a platform to discover new technologies and solutions, generate business connections, and access training and professional development content.

The International Trade Fair for Commercial and Information Security, Fire Protection and Safety closed its doors after three days in which networking, business opportunities and professional training took center stage. Companies, professionals and industry leaders gathered to exchange experiences, showcase innovations and discuss the main challenges currently facing the security industry.

Throughout the event, more than 120 national and international exhibitors presented products, services and developments related to Fire Protection, Electronic Security, Industrial Safety and Personal Protection, and risk and emergency management, welcoming 16,000 professional visitors.

Training and Networking Take Center Stage

As part of the exhibition, the 8th National Congress on Ergonomics and Human Factors, organized by the Argentine Ergonomics Association (AEA), was held under the theme "Ergonomics that Transforms: Experiences and Challenges in Real Contexts." The congress offered a comprehensive overview of the latest developments and trends in the field and attracted an audience of 285 professionals

The 4th National Conference on Occupational and Environmental Hygiene, organized by the Argentine Association of Occupational Hygienists (AHRA), also took place during the event. The initiative brought together 250 professionals and specialists to exchange knowledge and experiences on issues related to safety and health in the workplace.

Among the activities promoted by the Argentine Chamber of Electronic Security (CASEL) was the official presentation of the 2026 Electronic Security Market Study, developed jointly with the School of Economic Sciences of the University of Buenos Aires (UBA). During the presentation, a panel of experts and business leaders discussed the report's key findings and concluded that professional training and improved access to financing are among the most important challenges facing the industry.

The Women in Electronic Security Meeting also took place, bringing together women involved in the industry to strengthen professional relationships and generate new connections. The activity was aimed at business owners, executives, professionals, technicians, sales representatives and entrepreneurs interested in sharing experiences, discussing challenges and building a stronger professional network within the electronic security community.

Young professionals once again had a dedicated space through the Future Professionals at Intersec Buenos Aires Program, organized by Messe Frankfurt Argentina and the Technical Education Department of the Buenos Aires City Ministry of Education. As part of this initiative, more than 180 students toured the exhibition to gain strategic knowledge for their future careers.

Business, Innovation and Market Trends

Business opportunities were a key component of Intersec Buenos Aires. The event hosted the International Matchmaking Program of Products and Services of Electronic and Industrial Security and Personal Protection, with buyers from Bolivia, Colombia and Uruguay and the participation of 38 exhibiting companies, creating valuable opportunities for new business development.

Another highlight was a new edition of Nexo CASEL, the networking platform that connects suppliers of security technology with potential buyers, end users and representatives from a wide range of productive sectors.

The content program also included activities focused on workplace prevention and safety. Within the framework of initiatives organized by the Argentine Chamber of Safety (CAS), conferences addressed topics such as Industrial Protective Gloves for Arc Flash Risk and Better Safe than Sorry: Is Occupational Safety a Cost or the Most Profitable Investment for Sustainable Development?

Additional sessions included Fixed Fire Protection Systems: Technical and Legal Framework, Audits and Standards Certification, organized by the Chamber's IFCI Group, and Technological Innovation and Prevention in the Workplace: Local Experiences and Regulatory Framework, organized by the Argentine Network for Innovation in Prevention (RAIP).

Throughout the exhibition, more than 30 Exhibitors' Conferences featured technical presentations and commercial demonstrations that showcased innovative products and security solutions.

Notably, more than 3,000 specialized visitors participated in the event's conferences and special activities, demonstrating the central role that Intersec Buenos Aires has established within the industry.

A Gathering that Strengthened the Security Industry

Organized by the Argentine Chamber of Electronic Security (CASEL), the Argentine Chamber of Safety (CAS) and Messe Frankfurt Argentina, the 2026 edition of Intersec Buenos Aires once again consolidated its position as the leading meeting point for the comprehensive security industry, combining exhibition, business development, training and networking opportunities. The next edition will take place in 2028.
